

In 1995 I graduated with a law degree from the University of Durban Westville, Durban. I practiced law for a number of years specializing in both criminal and civil law before joining the short term insurance industry.

I spent five (5) years at Santam Insurance Company gaining knowledge in the short term insurance policies and procedures. This paved my way for joining Censeo (Pty) Ltd now EOH Forensic Services where aside from my legal duties, I am also responsible for detecting fraud. I am currently employed as an Attorney a EOH Forensic Services, a company which is at the heart of detecting and eradicating fraud in the Short and Life Insurance markets. I specialize in policy advice to insurance companies and a part of my work function is dedicated to detecting and deterring fraud.

I am a member of the Association of Certified Fraud Examiners, the South African Chapter of ACFE. I am also a Certified Fraud Examiner.

Fraud is often perceived as being an easily forgivable crime as the damage caused is generally superficial. There is marked ignorance on the long lasting financial detriment that this crime brings. It is generally, the everyday fraud that goes undetected but the financial implications are hard hitting on the common man's wallet. My aim is to make people significantly aware of the detriment of fraud and to stamp out corruption and fraud at all levels.
